

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Rodrigo Borges is a PhD candidate in philosophy at Rutgers University. His main research interest is in epistemology, with a focus on knowledge-first epistemology, but he also has interests in philosophy of language and philosophy of science. He co-edits with Peter D. Klein and Claudio de Almeida the volume “Explaining Knowledge: New Essays on the Gettier Problem” (Oxford University Press, forthcoming). His paper “Inferential Knowledge and the Gettier Conjecture” will appear in that volume. Contact: epistemen@gmail.com.

Thomas Hall is a recent graduate of Western Washington University, and is beginning his first year in the philosophy doctoral program at the University of Southern California in the Fall of 2014. His main areas of interest are in metaphysics, metametaphysics, and metaethics. Contact: thomashall13@msn.com.

Michael Huemer is professor of philosophy at the University of Colorado at Boulder. He is the author of more than 50 academic articles in ethics, epistemology, political philosophy, and metaphysics, as well as three fascinating books that all readers should buy immediately: Skepticism and the Veil of Perception (Rowman & Littlefield, 2001), Ethical Intuitionism (Palgrave Macmillan, 2005), and The Problem of Political Authority (Palgrave Macmillan, 2013). Contact: ikd3lob02@sneakemail.com.

Ned Markosian is a Professor of Philosophy at Western Washington University. He is co-author – with John W. Carroll – of An Introduction to Metaphysics (Cambridge University Press, 2010). He writes mainly about metaphysics, but also has interests in epistemology and ethics. Some recent publications include “A Spatial Approach to Mereology” (in Shieva Kleinschmidt, ed., Mereology and Location, Oxford University Press, 2014), “Two Puzzles About Mercy” (Philosophical Quarterly, 63, 2013), and “Agent Causation as the Solution to All the Compatibilist’s Problems” (Philosophical Studies, 157, 2012). Contact: ned.markosian@wwu.edu.

Rinat M. Nugayev is a Professor of Philosophy at Russian University of Cooperation. He is a philosopher with contributions in epistemology, philosophy, sociology and history of science. He has authored papers in these areas for The

Logos & Episteme

British Journal for the Philosophy of Science, Philosophy of Science, International Studies in the Philosophy of Science, Journal for General Philosophy of Science, Foundations of Science, Epistemologia, Centaurus, Physis, Historia Scientiarum, Theoria and Historia Scientiarum, Scientia, Almagest. His books include: Reconstruction of Mature Theory Change: A Theory Change Model (Peter Lang, 1999) and the books published in Russian: Einstein's Revolution: Interdisciplinary Context (2010), The Copernican Revolution: Unification of Mundane Physics and Mathematics of the Skies (2012), and Maxwellian Scientific Revolution: Reconciliation of research programmes of Ampere-Weber, Faraday and Young-Fresnel (2013). Contact: nugayevrinat@gmail.com.

Shane Ryan is a postdoctoral research fellow at Soochow University in Taipei City. He was awarded his PhD from the University of Edinburgh in 2013. His main areas of interest are virtue epistemology, social epistemology, and social philosophy. He has several papers under review and forthcoming, including "Standard Gettier Cases: A Problem for Greco?", which is to appear in Grazer Philosophische Studien. Contact: shaneryan27@hotmail.com.