

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Valentin Sorin Costreie is Lecturer in Theoretical Philosophy at the University of Bucharest. His main philosophical interests are in the philosophy of mathematics and the philosophy of language. He published various papers related to these issues in collective volumes and specialized journals. He is also one of the co-organizers at UB of the Bucharest colloquium in Analytic Philosophy and the Evenings with Science. Contact: sorin.costreie@celfis.ro.

Ettore De Monte is Affiliated Professor of Logic and History of Psychology at the Department of Psychology of Università Europea di Roma. His main interests are on the integration between logic and psychology and on epistemology and philosophy of science. He wrote, with Antonino Tamburello, Storia del Pensiero Psicologico (CISU Ed. 2008) and Una Logica Integrata per la Psicologia Clinica (CISU Ed. 2008). Contact: etторе.demonte@gmail.com.

Trent Dougherty is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Baylor University. His areas of specialization are epistemology/rationality theory (evidence/reasons), philosophy of religion, and philosophy of language. His areas of competence include philosophy of science, metaphysics and mind, and decision theory. He is the author of The Problem of Animal Pain: A Theodicy for All Creatures Great and Small (under contract with Palgrave MacMillan) and the editor of Evidentialism and Its Discontents (2011) and Skeptical Theism: New Essays (under contract with Oxford University Press). Contact: Trent_Dougherty@Baylor.edu.

Emma C. Gordon recently completed her PhD at the University of Edinburgh. Her area of specialisation is epistemology, and her research mainly focuses on understanding, epistemic value, epistemic luck, and social epistemology. Her other research interests include axiology, bioethics, and philosophy of language. She is the co-author of "Norms of Assertion: The Quantity and Quality of Epistemic Support" (with J. Adam Carter, Philosophia, 2011). Contact: e.c.gordon@sms.ed.ac.uk.

Jennifer Wilson Mulnix is Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Massachusetts Dartmouth. Her principal research is in the field of epistemology, particularly concerning a priori knowledge, reliabilism, naturalism, and rational intuition. Her most recent publications include "Reliabilism, Intuition, and Mathematical Knowledge" (Filozofia, 2008), "Semantic Externalism, Self-Knowledge, and Slow Switching" (Synthesis Philosophica, 2011), "Explanatory Unification and Scientific Understanding" (Acta Philosophica, 2011), and "Thinking Critically About Critical Thinking" (Educational Philosophy and Theory, 2012). She also researches in the areas of philosophy of happiness and experimental philosophy and is currently working on two books (with M.J. Mulnix) for Broadview Press: Theories of Happiness: An Anthology and Happy Lives, Moral Lives, and Good Lives. Contact: jmulnix@umassd.edu.

Adrian Muraru, Ph.D., is lecturer at 'Al. I. Cuza' University Iasi, Romania. He is currently teaching Ancient Philosophy and Philosophical Terminology at the Department of Philosophy. His main interests are in Late Ancient philosophy, Medieval Philosophy. He is editor of series 'The Christian Tradition' at Polirom Publishing House, Romania. He also coordinates a center of translation (ancient and medieval texts) at 'Al.I. Cuza' University Iasi, Romania. Contact: muraru_a@yahoo.com.

Alexander R. Pruss is Associate Professor in the Philosophy Department at Baylor University. His areas of interest are: metaphysics, philosophy of religion, applied ethics, formal epistemology and probability theory. His books are: One Body: An Essay in Christian Sexual Ethics (forthcoming), Possibility, Actuality and Worlds (2011) and The Principle of Sufficient Reason: A Reassessment (2006). Some recent journal articles include "Conditional Probability (forthcoming in Analysis), "Sincerely Asserting What You Do Not Believe" (forthcoming in Australasian Journal of Philosophy), "A Deflationary Theory of Diachronic Identity" (Australasian Journal of Philosophy, 2012) and "A Strictly Stationary, N-Tuplewise Independent Counterexample to the Central Limit Theorem" (with Richard C. Bradley, Stochastic Processes and Their Applications, 2009). Contact: alexander_pruss@baylor.edu.

Michael J. Shaffer is Associate professor of philosophy at St. Cloud State University. His main areas of research interest are in epistemology, logic and the philosophy of science, and he has published many articles on various topics in these areas. He is the secretary and treasurer of the Central States Philosophy Association, is the co-editor of What Place for the A Priori? (Open Court, 2011) and is the author of Counterfactuals and Scientific Realism (Palgrave-MacMillan, 2012) and The Experimental Turn and the Methods of Philosophy (Routledge, 2013). Contact: mjshaffer@stcloudstate.edu.

Antonino Tamburello is Professor of Clinical Psychology at Università Europea di Roma, Dean of the Department of Psychology at Università Europea di Roma, Founder and Director, since 1973, of Istituto Skinner of Rome for Psychiatry and Psychotherapy. He conceived the Cognitive-Causal Psychotherapy approach that represents an integration between the traditional Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy and the Principles of Causality. His most recent books include: Nuove procedure di Psicodiagnosi e Psicoterapia Cognitiva (Sugarco Ed. 2007), La Nuova Psicoterapia Cognitiva (Sugarco Ed. 2007), Psicoterapia Cognitiva e Profondità Causale (Sugarco Ed. 2007). He also wrote, with Ettore De Monte, Storia del Pensiero Psicologico (CISU Ed. 2008) and Una Logica Integrata per la Psicologia Clinica (CISU Ed. 2008). Contact: atamburello@istituto-skinner.it.

Robert C. Trundle is Professor of Philosophy at Northern Kentucky University. His main interests are the history of philosophy and philosophy of science as they apply to areas such as theology, medicine, ethics and logic. He has published approximately sixty articles and books in those areas and has been an invited referee for the journals Philosophy of Science (Philosophy of Science Association), Laval Théologique et Philosophique (Laval Université) and Dialogue: Canadian Philosophical Review (official journal of the Canadian Philosophical Association). He was elected to the Advisory Board of Sensus communis: Anuario Di Logica Aletica and was invited as an evaluator for Canada's Killam Research Fellowship (directed by the Canada Council for the Arts).

John Turri is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the University of Waterloo. He specializes in epistemology, philosophy of language, value theory, philosophy of mind, and metaphysics. His publications include, "On the Regress Argument for Infititism" (Synthese, 2009), "Epistemic Invariantism and Speech Act Contextualism" (Philosophical Review, 2010), "The Express Knowledge Account of Assertion" (Australasian Journal of Philosophy, 2011), "Manifest Failure: The Gettier Problem Solved" (Philosophers' Imprint, 2011), "Mythology of the Factive" (Logos & Episteme, 2011), "Knowledge Guaranteed" (Nous, forthcoming), and "Liberal Thinking" (Australasian Journal of Philosophy, forthcoming). Contact: john.turri@gmail.com.