

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Domingos Faria is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the Faculty of Arts and Humanities of the University of Porto (FLUP) and director of the master's degree in philosophy teaching. Moreover, he is an integrated member of the Institute of Philosophy of the University of Porto. His research focuses on issues in epistemology, philosophy of science, logic, philosophy of religion, and their intersection. Affiliation: Institute of Philosophy of the University of Porto. E-mail: dfaria@letras.up.pt.

Davide Fassio is an Associate Professor at the School of Philosophy of Zhejiang University (China), and Research Associate at the Department of Philosophy of the University of Johannesburg (South Africa). His research focuses on issues at the intersection of epistemology, ethics and theory of rationality. His published works cover a wide range of topics, including the aims and norms of belief, epistemic norms of action and assertion, the relation between knowledge and practical rationality, shifty epistemology, epistemic paradoxes, the role of the epistemic perspective in moral evaluation, and the nature of risk and danger. His work has been published in reputable academic journals, including Ethics, Philosophical Studies, Philosophical Quarterly and Synthese. Contact: davidefassio@gmail.com.

Mohsen Hasannezhad is a bachelor's student at the University of Tehran's Department of Literature and Humanities. His main research interests are in phenomenology, hermeneutics, epistemology, metaphysics, and Hermeticism. In September 2023, he published a book titled Lebens Philosophy: A Journey of Reason in the Realm of Incompleteness. He was one of co-founders of www.Hatefcenter.org and the vice-president of this institute for more than five years. Contact: hasannezhad1996@gmail.com.

Seyyed Mohammad Ali Hodjati is an associate professor in the Department of Philosophy at Tarbiat Modares University (Tehran, Iran). His main research interests are in the philosophy of logic and language and also comparative logic between modern and Aristotelean logic (interpreted by Muslim logicians). He has translated Susan Haack's book—Philosophy of Logics—into Persian as well as Mark Sainsbury's work (as a chapter entitled "Philosophy of Logic") included in Philosophy: A Guide Through the Subject. Hodjati has written almost 85 papers (independently or with his students) most of which are in Persian. However, some papers are published in the journals History and Philosophy of Logic and Axiomathes. His recent book entitled Philosophy of Logic and Language: Semantics which is written in Persian is under publication. His contact is: hojatima@modares.ac.ir.

Björn Lundgren received his PhD in 2018, at the Royal Institute of Technology. After finishing his PhD, he led a project on ethics of autonomous vehicles at the Institute for Futures Studies (IFFS), where he remains affiliated. While at the IFFS, he also consulted for the University of Twente, working mainly on ethical guidelines for AI and robotics in two EU projects (SIENNA and SHERPA). After his time at IFFS, he took up a position as a postdoc at Umeå University in a project on AI, Democracy and Self-Determination. At the time his paper in this issue was accepted, Lundgren was a postdoctoral researcher at Utrecht University and a member of the research programme Ethics of Socially Disruptive Technologies. In January, 2024, Lundgren started a position as Research Fellow at The Centre for Philosophy and AI Research at the University of Erlangen-Nürnberg. His most updated lists of publications can be usually found at Google Scholar and philpapers.org. <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-5830-3432>. Contact: b.a.lundgren@uu.nl.

Paul-Mikhail Catapang Podosky is Lecturer in Philosophy at Macquarie University, Sydney. Their work explores the relationship between language, thought, and the construction of unjust hierarchy. Published articles can be found at www.paulpodosky.com. Contact: paul.podosky@mq.edu.au

Olga Ramírez obtained her Dr. Phil from the University of Frankfurt am Main and is currently a member of the Faculty at the Department of Philosophy at the University of Málaga, Spain. She specialised in the philosophy of language (broadly understood, epistemology and metaphysics) and has worked on realism-antirealism, truth, metaethics, conceptual genealogy, Wittgenstein's rule-following and Frege's foundation of mathematics. Contact: olgamirezcalleg@gmail.com.

Ioannis Telios obtained his PhD in Philosophy from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki in 2022. He is a research fellow in the Department of History and Philosophy of Science at the University of Athens. His research is focused on epistemology, ethics, and the philosophy of mind. Contact: itelios@phs.uoa.gr.