

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Lisa Bastian is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam, who has previously received her PhD from the University of St Andrews. She works on topics within (Meta)Ethics, Epistemology and Social Philosophy, with a focus on questions surrounding the notions of rationality and reasoning: what does rationality require of us, is it primarily concerned with preserving coherence, or with correctly responding to reasons? And how important is rationality when compared to other norms? Contact: l.bastian@vu.nl.

Perry Hendricks is a Teaching Specialist at The University of Minnesota, Morris. His book, Skeptical Theism, was published by Palgrave MacMillan in 2023, and everyone should immediately cite, buy, and read it. Contact: perryhendricks990@gmail.com.

Iñaki Xavier Larrauri Pertierra is a philosophy PhD student at Macquarie University. His research interests are quite eclectic, involving epistemology, ontology, philosophy of science, moral philosophy, and even continental philosophers like Gadamer and Heidegger. Access his other publications here: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-1244-6934>. Contact: inaki.larrauripertierra@mq.edu.au.

Mark P. Maller was Assistant Professor in philosophy at Lewis University, taught at College of DuPage (and others) and is presently retired. Achieved Ph.D. Duquesne University, Pittsburgh. In his early career he worked in phenomenology. Interests include philosophy of religion, metaphysics, modern philosophy, scientific empiricism and practical ethics. His work is found on ResearchGate and Philpapers. He lives near Chicago. Contact: mpmpphilosophy@gmail.com.

Chris Tweedt is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Christopher Newport University. He specializes in epistemology, philosophy of religion, and applied ethics. He has published in Philosophy Compass, Social Epistemology, Religious Studies, Faith and Philosophy, and the Journal of Law, Business, and Ethics. Contact: chris.tweedt@cnu.edu.