

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Wai Lok Cheung works on the necessary a posteriori with his M.Phil. thesis at The Chinese University of Hong Kong, generating an epistemic counterpart theory using indistinguishability. His work is published in Australasian Journal of Philosophy, Asian Studies, Comparative Philosophy, and Journal of Comparative Literature and Aesthetics. More can be found at <http://hongkonggray.com/>. Contact: hongkonggray@gmail.com.

Mark Anthony L. Dacela earned his PhD from De La Salle University Manila, where he is also an Associate Professor and serves as the current Chair of the Department of Philosophy. He has published works in epistemology, ethics, and education in Intersections, Educational Philosophy and Theory, Diametros, Kritike, Asia-Pacific Social Science Review, and Philosophia: International Journal of Philosophy. He is one of the editors of the book Stephen Hetherington on Epistemology: Knowing, More or Less, recently published by Bloomsbury. Contact: mark.anthony.dacela@dlsu.edu.ph.

Caleb Estep is a PhD student at Saint Louis University. He holds an MA in philosophy from Franciscan University of Steubenville. His main research interests are in metaphysics and epistemology. His work is available online at <https://philpeople.org/profiles/caleb-estep>. Contact: caleb.estep@slu.edu.

Mark Maller was Assistant Professor in philosophy at Lewis University, taught at College of DuPage and others and is presently retired. He earned a Ph.D in philosophy at Duquesne University, Pittsburgh and a M.L.S. In his early career he worked in phenomenology. Research interests include philosophy of religion, metaphysics, modern philosophy, scientific empiricism and normative ethics. His published work is found on ResearchGate and Philpapers. He lives near Chicago.

Meha Mishra holds a Ph.D. in Philosophical Logic from the Indian Institute of Technology Kanpur, India. Her research primarily engages with the intersection of philosophy and ethics, with a focus on formal approaches to moral reasoning and conflict. Her work, Tolerating Inconsistencies: A Study of the Logic of Moral Conflicts, explores how logical systems can accommodate contradictory obligations and has been published in the Bulletin of the Section of Logic. Dr. Mishra welcomes academic inquiries and collaboration opportunities. She can be contacted at mehamishra30@gmail.com.

Logos and Episteme

Kurt Christian B. Tubera is an instructor from the Department of Philosophy, University of the Philippines, Diliman, where he is also currently taking his MA degree. He earned his BA in Philosophy at De La Salle University. He aims to specialize in Epistemology and dabbles in Metaphysics, Philosophy of Mind, Logic, and Moral Philosophy. Contact: kbtubera@up.edu.ph.

Robert Vinten is a researcher at the Ifilnova research institute at Universidade Nova in Lisbon, Portugal. He is currently working on an FCT-funded project with the title 'Power, Prejudice, and Perception'. He received his PhD in philosophy from Universidade Nova in 2018. He is the author of the book Wittgenstein and the Social Sciences (Anthem Press, 2020) and the editor of Wittgenstein and the Cognitive Science of Religion (Bloomsbury Academic, 2023) and has published numerous articles in journals such as Philosophical Investigations, Teorema, Critique, Topoi, Wittgenstein Studien, and Nordic Wittgenstein Review. Contact: rvinten@fcsh.unl.pt.