NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

John Ian K. Boongaling is a Professor at the Department of Philosophy, University of the Philippines Diliman, where he teaches courses in Contemporary Analytic Philosophy. His most recent papers appeared in Prolegomena, Problemos, Kriterion: Journal of Philosophy, Frontiers in Psychology, and Organon F: International Journal of Analytic Philosophy. Contact: jkboongaling@up.edu.ph.

Alexandru Dragomir is a lecturer at the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Bucharest (Romania). He pursued studies in Philosophy and Mathematics at the same university, where he also earned his PhD in Philosophy. His research has been focused on subjects such as modal epistemology, the ethics of cognitive enhancement, and military ethics, appearing in journals like Bioethics, Neuroethics, and Philosophia. Additionally, he contributed a chapter on cognitive enhancement within the universe of Frank Herbert's Dune, featured in the book Dune and Philosophy (ed. Kevin S. Decker) published by Wiley-Blackwell. Alexandru was supported by a grant of the Research Institute of the University of Bucharest (ICUB, nr. 10504/25.10.2024) "The effects of LLM interaction on TOM în digital and virtual environments". Contact: alexandru.dragomir@filosofie.unibuc.ro.

Domingos Faria is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the Faculty of Arts and Humanities of the University of Porto (FLUP) and director of the master's degree in philosophy teaching. Moreover, he is an integrated member of the Institute of Philosophy of the University of Porto. His research focuses on issues in epistemology, philosophy of science, logic, philosophy of religion, and their intersection. Contact: dfaria@letras.up.pt.

Gareth Fuller earned his PhD in Philosophy from the University of Kansas. His research interests are generally in the philosophy of science and the philosophy of education. In the philosophy of science, his focus is on epistemic issues in modeling, particularly the role of idealizations in modeling. He currently serves as an Instructional Designer at the University of Maine at Presque Isle. Contact: gareth.fuller@maine.edu.

Rogelio Miranda Vilchis earned his PhD from the National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), where he is also a postdoctoral researcher. He has published works in metaphilosophy, epistemology, and philosophy of science in journals such as Episteme, Metaphilosophy, Ratio, and Acta Analytica. His research interests include the philosophy and psychology of expertise, the methodology of philosophy, experimental philosophy, and conceptual engineering. Contact: rogeliomv0101@gmail.com.

Nastasia Mueller is a postdoctoral researcher at Heinrich-Heine-Universität Düsseldorf and a member of the DFG-funded research project Cognitive Rational Reconstruction (CoRaRe) (548061227). Starting October 2025, she will work on a DFG-funded project titled Trust and Trustworthiness and Their Implications for Testimony and Epistemic Authority (552576003) at Technische Universität Berlin. Previously, she held a position at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin in the Research Training Group Philosophy, Science and the Sciences (228914880). She completed her PhD at Freie Universität Berlin. Her research interests include epistemology, philosophy of mind, and metaphysics. Contact: mullernastasia@gmail.com.

Lei Niu is a PhD student in the Cologne Center for Contemporary Epistemology and the Kantian Tradition (CONCEPT) at the University of Cologne. He works in social and political epistemology, with a particular interest in epistemic interventions aimed at addressing fake news, conspiracy theories, and the growing threat of epistemic crises. Contact: lniu2@smail.uni-koeln.de.

Mihai Rusu works as a lecturer at the Faculty of History and Philosophy, Babeş-Bolyai University in Cluj-Napoca, Romania, and holds a PhD in Philosophy from the same university. He has done research and published papers in the fields of modal epistemology, modal metaphysics, the philosophy of modal logic, and bioethics. Mihai is particularly interested in applying the tools of modal epistemology and modal logic to problems in practical philosophy. Other research interests include various issues in metaphilosophy, general epistemology, social epistemology, argumentation theory and critical thinking, and the philosophy of science. Contact: rusu.mihai@ubbcluj.ro.