

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Miguel López Astorga has a Ph.D. in Logic and Philosophy of Sciences from the University of Cádiz (Spain). That degree is validated by the University of Chile. His undergraduate studies were also carried out in Spain. He has a bachelor's degree in philosophy and education sciences (Philosophy section) from the University of Seville. He has a Teaching Degree for the High School Level in Philosophy from the University of Chile (this last degree was obtained by validation of the Spanish bachelor's degree). He carried out post-doctoral research on human reasoning, on the mental model theory, and on the logical forms of propositions, under the supervision of Professor Philip Johnson-Laird. Although he has worked in several institutions, at present, he is Full Professor and Researcher at the University of Talca (Chile). His latest research focuses on the human and artificial inferential activity. He is especially interested in the relations that can be found between syntax, semantics, and pragmatics in that activity. He also addresses the possible cognitive potential of some ancient logics, particularly, Stoic logic. Contact: milopez@utalca.cl.

John Ian K. Boongaling is a Professor at the Department of Philosophy, University of the Philippines Diliman, where he teaches courses in Contemporary Analytic Philosophy. His most recent papers appeared in The Reasoner, Think: Philosophy for Everyone, Logos & Episteme, Prolegomena, Problemos, Kriterion: Journal of Philosophy, Frontiers in Psychology, and Organon F: International Journal of Analytic Philosophy. Contact: jkboongaling@up.edu.ph.

Michael DeVito is a Lecturer in Philosophy at the University of Maine. He earned his Ph.D. in Philosophy from the University of Birmingham. His research focuses on the philosophy of religion, and his work has appeared in the International Journal for Philosophy of Religion, European Journal for Philosophy of Religion, Asian Journal of Philosophy, and the Journal of Analytic Theology. He is also the co-author, with Jc Beall, of Entailment, Contradiction, and Christian Theism, published by Cambridge University Press. Contact: michael.devito@maine.edu.

Xia Li is a professor of philosophy at Academy of History and Culture of Science, Shanghai Jiao Tong University. His research focuses on the philosophy of science, social epistemology, sociology of scientific knowledge (SSK), and philosophy of mind. He has published over 220 academic papers in core journals such as

Philosophical Research, Studies in Dialectics of Nature, Studies in Science of Science, and international journals including Science in China. He is the author of several monographs, including Rupture and Integration: A Multi-dimensional Examination of Scientism (2006) and Clamor and Gaze: Science and Technology Policy and Public Life in the Transitional Period. He serves on the editorial board of Studies in Philosophy of Science and Technology and holds leadership positions in several professional organizations, including the Chinese Society for Dialectics of Nature and the Chinese Society for Philosophy of Science. His work has been recognized with numerous awards, including the National Education Commission Award for Scientific and Technological Progress (1997) and the Shanghai Jiao Tong University Outstanding Teacher Award (2008). Contact: lixia001@sjtu.edu.cn

Tyler Dalton McNabb is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at VinUniversity, Hanoi. He earned his PhD from the University of Glasgow. McNabb is the author/co-author of over 40 articles featured in peer review venues such as Religious Studies, Philosophy Compass, and Philosophy East and West. McNabb is also the author/editor of 10 books including Religious Epistemology (Cambridge University Press) and The Cambridge Handbook of Religious Epistemology (Cambridge University Press). Contact: tylerdaltonmcnabb@gmail.com.

Gabriel Gustavo Núñez Pérez is a first-year PhD student in Logic and Philosophy of Science at the Universitat de València (Spain), where he works under the supervision of Dr. Valeriano Iranzo. His doctoral research focuses on the ontological implications of thermodynamics and entropy. He is a member of the Spanish Society for Logic, Methodology and Philosophy of Science (SLMFCE). His research interests lie in the ontological and epistemological foundations of the natural sciences, with particular attention to the metaphysical commitments implicit in physical theory. Contact: gabriel.pyros@gmail.com.

Carin Robinson is a lecturer at The University of KwaZulu-Natal, since 2023. She lectures across all undergraduate levels in a wide range of philosophical areas. Her postgraduate teaching focuses on epistemology, philosophy of language, philosophy of science and political philosophy - in particular theories of rights attribution. Her current postgraduate supervision is mostly in political philosophy. Robinson's research is situated within epistemology and philosophy of language and she has been working on post-logical positivist philosophy since her PhD. Her area of expertise is the analytic-synthetic distinction. For this reason, her research often focuses on problems raised by attempts to naturalise philosophy in the Quinean tradition. Contact: robinsonc@ukzn.ac.za.

Shlomit Wygoda Cohen is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Philosophy at the University of Haifa. She completed her PhD in Philosophy at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem in 2020, under the supervision of David Enoch. Her research lies primarily at the intersection of metaphysics, metaethics, and ethics, with particular interests in metaphysical explanation and moral particularism. Her work has appeared in Philosophy and Phenomenological Research, Ethics, Synthese, Bioethics, and Ratio. Contact: shlomit@humanities.haifa.ac.il.

Feinan Ye is a PhD student in philosophy at Academy of History and Culture of Science, Shanghai Jiao Tong University, China. She works in philosophy of skill and knowledge, focusing on AI skill and its epistemological significance to human beings. Her work is published in several Chinese journals concerning AI hallucination and predictive mind. Her recent work is to be published soon in Teorema, holding that AI has insentient skill and modal robustness. Contact: 121000213021@sjtu.edu.cn.